About India

From the flowing Ganges River to the powerfully daunting Himalayas, India is a country of splendid scenery and great geographical diversity. Alongside the country's staggering topographical range is its cultural diversity—the result of numerous religions and traditions thrown into one melting pot.

Underneath this diversity, both geographical and cultural, lies the continuity of Indian civilization and a unique social structure that has thrived since antiquity. However, amidst the rapid change and ancient traditions of Delhi lives a neglected and impoverished population of children – who would undoubtedly thrive if given the opportunity.

By volunteering your time to these children, you'll be giving them an invaluable chance to improve their lives. More importantly, you'll be providing them with attention and love – two things that every child needs to blossom.

The Delhi Volunteer Program consists of three phases:

Phase I – Language and Cultural Immersion Program (One week)

Phase II- Volunteer work in the project (1-12 weeks)

Phase III- Golden Triangle Tour (3 days)

Phase I: Language and Cultural Immersion Program (One week - Optional)

The Language and Cultural Immersion Program is a one week adventure in cross-cultural learning, language study, and travel. The program is an orientation which will acclimate you to Indian culture, religions, politics, climates, and other issues related to volunteering in India. You'll undoubtedly be eager to learn the language that will allow you to communicate with the children, and discover the traditions and history that makes this country so incredible. On the Immersion Program, volunteers will learn the basic phrases and verbs that are commonly used by Indians in their daily lives, as well as the cultural and social etiquette that will be their passport into a truly authentic experience. You'll also explore the vibrant city of Delhi, covering the most popular tourist destinations of old and New Delhi. In summary, this one week program offers you intriguing glimpses of India and an in-depth understanding of the country and people, which will allow you to better serve the orphans and better assimilate with the Indian way of life.

Phase II: Volunteer in a Rehabilitation Project (1-12 weeks)

Global Crossroad's Rehabilitation Volunteer Project in India presents a massive, challenging task for those who want to help at-risk youth. Sadly, many young people in India today are addicted to drugs. In Delhi, many rehabilitation centers work with these young men and women to help them return to normal, productive lives. Through constructive counseling and training, rehabilitation programs like Global Crossroad's help to re-integrate these young people into society as independent, self-sufficient individuals by giving them the social and working skills they need to become solid citizens in the future.

Addicted youth are not the only beneficiaries of rehabilitation center care. Separate rehabilitation centers that care for physically and mentally challenged children and adults have been established, enabling many to experience a normal life in Indian society. Here, too, volunteers make a profound difference in the lives of these challenged individuals. As a volunteer in our rehabilitation project, you will share your time and talents with these marginalized people, helping them to reclaim a life of dignity and independence.
